2. Noted.

3. Noted.

4, 5. Claims 21, 25 and 26 are not believed to be anticipated by Piazze '285 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b). Applicant takes issue with the Examiner's assertion that Piazze has "individual disposable transparent bags or 'covers'". Specifically, the roll of bags of Piazze at col. 2, lines 16-18 that the containers 10 or bags "are adapted to be detached, one by one, by cutting along the dotted lines 12 when they are desired for use." Such cutting would seem to make such bag non-sterile.

Then at col. 2, lines 19-24, the containers 10 or bags "are initially sterilized and maintained in sterilized condition while the transverse seals are made so that the inside walls of the containers 10 are in sterilized condition when furnished to the user and are never exposed to outside air until the individual containers are detached for use." (emphasis added).

There is absolutely no mention that the roll of bags of Piazze is in any way sterilized so that the outer walls are sterile.

Applicant claims a "package of individual disposable sterile transparent covers for a keyboard" and as shown by the attached definitions on Dictionary.com and Merriam-Webster's Free Medical Dictionary, that "sterile" means "free from living organisms" and both cite "sterile syringe" for example, i.e., the entire object is sterile, not just the inner walls like Piazze. Also, see sterile covers from www.Medical.siemens.com, attached hereto.

Piazze in col. 1, lines 56-67, not only discloses that quoted by the Examiner, but also sets forth that the containers obtained are for use as nursing bottles", which seem to be far afield from the intended use set forth in claims 21, 25 and 26. It is noted that the opening in a container or bag of Piazze is made by cutting along a short side of the bag, unlike that of applicant's claimed cover.

Applicant also takes issue with remainder of the rejection bridging pages 3 and 4, for reasons of record herein.

6, 7, 8. Claims 28 and 29 are believed to be patentable under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) over Piazze. Contrary to the Examiner's statement, Piazze containers are formed from an extrusion machine in the form of a "tube" (see col. 2, lines 41-42), and thus this rejection would seem to be improper. Also, note remarks above.

9. Claims 32, 37, 41 and 42 are believed to be patentable under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) over Yanagisawa in view of Piazze.

Yanagisawa states in col. 11, lines 36-37, inter alia

"Otherwise than the structure shown in FIG. 10, the entire keyboard body 21 may be covered to be enclosed. (Further, as required, the cable 22 may be covered with the cover 34' or another cover.)"

There is no suggestion in Yanagisawa that either disclosed cover 34 or 34' is or may be an envelope, as only suggested by applicant and by the Examiner. From the reading of Yanagisawa, it would seem that two elastic covers would be used to cover the keyboard —one on the bottom and another on the top. Those are simply the only covers shown and described in Yanagisawa. Only by viewing applicant's invention by hindsight would one having ordinary skill in the art reconstruct Yanagisawa cover or covers into a single envelope covering the entire keyboard, as set forth in applicant's claims.

As to the shortcomings of Piazze, see remarks above.

There seems to be a leap of faith when the Examiner, at the top of page 7, states, "forming an envelope as recited." Again one viewing Yanagisawa would more than likely use two covers to enclose or cover the entire keyboard. Piazze just does not have or disclose a "long" top edge or "long" bottom edge or two "short" side edge portions, nor that the tube of Piazze is formed as an "envelope".

With respect to claim 37, neither Yanagisawa nor Piazze teach an "elongated opening" along the long top edge portion is not believed to "involve simply a matter of design choice" because of the unexpected result of being able to envelop the keyboard easier and to remove the contaminated envelope more readily for disposal while protecting the keyboard's sterility.

With respect to claims 41 and 42, Piazze does not include "sheet members" as well as other deficiencies noted above.

10. For the Examiner to consider applicant's arguments "merely speculation regarding how one of ordinary skill in the art might interpret...Yanagisawa beyond the general teaching" that "the entire keyboard body 21 may be covered to be enclosed" (col. 11, lines 36-37 of Yanagisawa), seems at odds with the specific showings and descriptions in Yanagisawa, i.e., applicant's arguments are believed to be less speculative than those of the Examiner who has the hindsight benefit of applicants' disclosure.

Allowance of all of the claims in this application is believed to be appropriate.

Any suggestions by the Examiner which may render any of the claims to be more clearly allowable over the prior art would be welcomed.

Respectfully submitted,

Site This SourceWord Origin & History*sterile

1426, "barren" (implied in sterility), from M.Fr. stérile "not producing fruit," from L. sterilis "barren, unproductive," from PIE *ster- "sterile, barren" originally "stiff, rigid" (cf. Gk. steresthai "be deprived of," steira "sterile," stereos "firm, solid, stiff, hard;" Skt. sterih "a barren cow;" O.C.S. sterica "a barren cow;" Goth. stairo "barren;" O.N. stirfa "a barren cow"). See torpor. Originally in Eng. with ref. to soil; of females, from 1535. The sense of "sterilized" is first recorded 1877. Sterilize "destroy the fertility of" is from 1695 (in ref. to soil); of living things from 1828. Meaning "render free of microorganisms" is from 1878. Sterilization is from 1874.
